IS THE FASTEST GROWING
COMMUNITY IN THE EVERGLADES

VOLUME 8—NUMBER 35

GLEEING
GLADES
Threshed Out In Belle Glade
BY PHIL CLARKE

DISPITE OUR GREAT NATURAL WEALTH, we are still inhabitants of a region described by the President of the National Emergency Council as the "nation's economic problem number one." The area, and surrounding hinterland, is almost fantastically rich in fertility of soil, abundance of climate and tremendous location. Conditions are such that, systematically maintained, this region should never be deprived of its natural wealth. We cannot escape this fact. It is just this particular region, not the exemplar of the favorable natural conditions elsewhere in the South, nevertheless should be conspicuous as an efficient and productive American standard of living. It is difficult to explain. The bulk of our population is well distributed in the country, and we are migratory, incapable of supporting themselves the year around in this fertile land.

The Federal government, supported by the vast resources of a country generally considered the richest in the world, is now attempting to assist those people who are unable to support themselves at a level of living in a country possessing an abnormally high level of living. The problem of people in minority, and this case about one-third of the population of the United States, is made more important when the co-ordinators are capable of controlling conditions to their own advantage. The present government has made no attempt to provide a government of all the people, even the lesser one-third.

With the announcement by the Farm Security Administration that Belle Glade will have $500,000 worth of livable houses, the working population will have the first conscientious effort by the Federal government to relieve purely economic conditions. Realizing that such a problem extends the ability of local county or state governments to control the population, the government is trying, in using the wealth of the greater two-thirds to alleviate the sufferings of the minority, that we are fortunate. Such government aid will lessen the burden upon ourselves, whether it be economic or racial.

But, there are still those who oppose the event or better housing for the majority, and who are for themselves. The answer is simple: that these improvements are designed to help the majority of the people who are economically unable to assist themselves.

What valid objections can these opponents have after examining the evidence at hand? Government photographers came upon the scene, and the following three conditions are foremost:

Seventy-seven negroes living in a long, windowless building in Canal Point.

Instances of negro children playing ankle deep in human waste.

The white children of the town, adults existing in a 12x12 shelter beyond the Lake drive Belle Glade, in a grass clearing, with poles supporting a tin roof, rags for walls and rough rags on the bare ground to sleep upon.

The effects of bad housing can be measured directly in the general welfare. It lessens industrial efficiency, causes inferior citizenship, lowers the standard of family life, and deprives people of reasonable comfort. There are also direct relations between poor housing and poor health, and between poor housing and crime.

The President's National Emergency Council, composed of southern citizens, described southern town slums thusly:

Bert Lapp Resigns As Glades Manager Of Power Company

Served 10 Years To The Day, Resignation Effective June 1

After 10 years of outstanding service with the Florida Power & Light Company, Bert Lapp, widely known and highly respected vice president and general manager of the company, effective June 1, Mr. Lapp has resigned the company for exactly 10 years, commencing with the day, June 1, 1929, when he assumed management of a small two-unit plant serving only 250 customers.

From these meagre beginnings, Mr. Lapp built the Glades section of the Florida Power & Light Company into a large and important unit that it is today, serving 1,600 customers and extending from Port Mayaca to Hialeah.

Mr. Lapp has seen the steady development of the Lake Okechobee region since his arrival here in 1929. During that time, he has seen the growth of the area, and he has seen the construction of the power plant, and the other Belle Glade.

Mr. Lapp has been a constant presence in the community, and his guidance influence has always been an inspiration to those who have had the good fortune to be associated with him, whether it be in a social or a business manner.

Together with Mr. Lapp and six-month-old daughter, Bert and Lapp will continue his residence in Port Mayaca, where he has a home in Port Mayaca until proposed business plans have been completed, either in Canal Point or in Port Mayaca.

For the past two weeks, countless numbers of Mr. and Mrs. Lapp's personal friends have extended good wishes to them for the future. Bert was personally honored by the community, and the members of the Belle Glade Chamber of Commerce last week and made the recipient of a resolution of gratitude, and a special award.

Mr. Lapp's resignation was announced by the town commission of Belle Glade Wednesday night. He has made a fine record for himself, and the brief record of growth and development of the Everglades has set an outstanding example for the new town, and is intended to follow in his path.

Riedel Says He Is Not Against Camps

Through a misinformed source, this paper last week carried the story of R. H. Riedel in connection with a number of local citizens opposing construction of the two migratory labor camps.

Mr. Riedel was interviewed by the Miami Herald, and he said that he was not against the camps and will assist in all material ways the betterment of general housing conditions in this area.

Braddock Talks Cattle To Kiwanis

Roscoe Braddock, Belle Glade farmer and cattleman, told the Kiwanis Club of the town last night that the vast potential wealth that lies in the development of agriculture and cattle raising in this area.

Braddock talked especially of the opportunities for the farmer in the development of agriculture in the Glades while Miami discussed general farming activities, along the coast.

Braddock pointed out that the Everglades is in need of a new type of farming, and that the farmer must not be dependent upon one particular line of endeavor. He pointed out that the farmer must be able to produce in quantities 20 times greater than the present production.

Much More Acreage To Be Farmed Next Season In Glades

Jim Dew Sell's Acreage To Three Belle Glade Men

Further emphasizing the development of Everglades virgin grass land east of the Experiment Station, near Six Mile Bridge, L. W. and F. E. Carrier, Ernest M. VanLandingham and Casper VanLandingham last week purchased three more tracts of land in the four Belle Glade sections for the purpose of immediate development.

The new farming section, including the three tracts sold last week and other large tracts purchased by the same group, will be developed into approximately three miles east of Six Mile Bridge. A section of land in the north end of the Everglades, north of the Everglades and a half section in the south end, both lying along the west side of State Road 25.

L. W. and F. E. Carrier, both of whom have been farming here for many years, have acquired ownership of 581 acres in Sections 28 and 33, lying north and south of the canal.

Another farming area, lying north of the canal, and owned by Casper VanLandingham is in the same section but in the opposite end of the canal. This area will be developed immediately. He also expects to farm about 100 acres next winter.
